The Bill Creating the Office of Private Secretary for the Governor Raises a Little Storm.

Governor Leslie Submits His Appointments to the Council-Taken Under Consideration.

As the session nears its close the legislators are doing really hard work and are passing bills with an unanimity that is surprising. Occasionally there is a difference of opinion, as was evidenced by debates in the house yesterday, but on the whole the members are as ardently affectionate for for each other's measures as little dickey birds in mating time. The bill creating the office of mine inspector as amended passed the house. There was a general discussion over the bill providing a private secretary for the governor, which finally went to the committee on ways and means Kennedy's bill providing for the adoption of the Australian system of voting was un-der consideration by the committee of the whole for some time and will come up again to day. Gov. Leslie sent in his nom-inations for the offices of territorial treas urer, auditor, superintendent of public in-structions, attorney general and librarian. They were referred to the proper commit-

THE COUNCIL.

When the council met all were present except Hoffman. Kennedy reported house bill No. 25, re lating to minors visiting saloons and gambling houses, correctly enrolled, and that the bill concerning free bridges was presented to the governor for his consideration.

Brown, from the judiciary committee, reported back council bill No. 41, concerning licenses, with the recommendation that it do pass.

Collins, from the printing committee, reported council bill No. 36, relating to town and village sites and plats, correctly printed.

Reterred to committee on towns and coun-kennedy gave notice that he would introduce a bill relating to the publication of notices required by law to be posted.

Without previous notice Brown introduced council bill No. 45, relating to irrigation and water rights. Read first and second times and ordered printed, under a suspension of the rules.

Middleton introduced a bill to provide for the levy and assessment of property. On motion of Middleton, read first and second times by title and ordered printed.

Kennedy offered council joint resolution No. 13, to provide for compensation for Frank R. Shaffer and J. V. Jerome, accountants, employed in experting the audi-countants, employed in experting the audi-tor's and the treasurer's accounts. Read and referred to ways and means committee. and referred to ways and means committee.

After hearing a message from the house relative to the appointment of a joint committee the council went into committee of the whole, Collins in the chair.

Council bill No. 39, to amend section No. 272 of the probate practice act, was considered and amended. Also council bill No. 38, Kennedy's bill, relating to ballots and writing at elections.

when the committee arose, council resumed and Collins, chairman of the committee of the whole, reported having considered counbit bill No. 39 and reported back the same with amendments and recommended its adoption and passage. Also council bill No. 38; reported progress on the same and asked for further time. Kennedy, from the enrollment committee, reported house bill No. 25 correctly enrolled. The president then signed the bill. This is the one prohibiting minors from visiting saloons and gambling houses.

port the same to the council.

On motion of Middleton, the council took a recess until 7 o'clock p. m., for the further consideration of council bill No 38. There was a quorum present for the evening session, but the gas refused to burn, and not wishing to transact business in the dark, a motion to adjourn until 10 o'clock this morning prevailed.

The house met at the usual morning hour. Saxton was granted leave of ablowed to introduce house bill No. 30, to provide a private secretary for the governor at an annual salary of $1,200.

Haskell moved to suspend the rules and put the bill on final passage.

Blakely said he would very much like to vote for the bill if it were dated back two years. Then it would come with good trace. The gentlemen were very solicitous.

He thought the bill should take its regular course.

Blakeley became jocular. It did not come with very good grace, speaking of the governor's salary. Look at the honorable members of this house, serving our constituents for $4 per day. We would not have the audacity to vote ourselves $6 per day—about the amount we spend. (Laughter.) He would move to reconsider the vote by which the rules were suspended. Ruled out of order.

It occurred to Murray that the matter had brought about an unnecessary discus-

If it were a political measure he was willing to all the publication from "all a political measure he was willing to able to by the declarations of Hon. Joseph K. Toole, over his own signature, that the territory was democratic. If that is true, when the territory is admitted that party will receive the benefits of the bill, provided the law is continued under the state form of government. He did not desire to make a party measure of it.

Hund did not believe in hasty legislation. Thompson of Deer Lodge said in his county the democratic paper published the ticket, no matter whether it is their politics or not. Don't strike it out.

House bill No. 16, the mining inspector bill, was then read third time, and Mantle called Saxton to the chair and took the floor. whole were he not of the opinion that persistent efforts had been made to defeat the measure. The course pursued had not been an honorable nor open fight. Insinuations had been made in private. What effect they would have he could not, of course, determine until a final vote was taken. Statements had been made outside the house which would not bear inspection or withstand argument. The article in the INDEPENDENT of yesterday was a misrepresentation of the facts. Some portions of the article he knew were absolutely misstatements. Last evening (Tuesday) an informal meeting was held in the council chamber, consisting of the council committee on mines and minerals, some members of the house and two prominent mining gentlemen from Butte to consult on the bill. He had heard that J. K. Clark, superintendent of the Moulton mine, was quoted as being opposed to the members of the miners' union and mine owners. He had heard this objection for the first time. Capt. Branagan, an esteemed citizen of Silver Bow county, was also quoted as being opposed to the bill; that it was a piece of demagogy and would work hardship on those it was intended to benefit. He had not a word to say against the gentleman, but he was not advised that Capt. Branagan had been or was at the present time operating any mine. The the front errollment committee reported that house bill No. 6, to license physicians and surgeons, house bill No. 9, relative to the protection of fish and game, house bill No. 12, to allow certain towns and cities to incur in debtedness, and house bill No. 25, to prohibit minors from frequenting saloons and gambiling houses, had been handed to the gambiling houses, had been handed to the governor for his signature.

of the house. Moore was willing to leave the fate of the bill with the sober judgment of the mem-bers of the house. He had been ridiculed cil chamber.

Mantle spoke again and said he thought Moore's course had been honorable. Orig-inally, the bill was going to revolutionize the mining industry, it was going to destroy it, it was going to close up the mines. So far as that calamity was concerned, the gentleman from Deer Lodge had fought gentieman from Deer Lodge had fought the bill inch by inch, line by line and sec-tion by section. Objections were made on the score of economy. This was not a measure that should be determined by the rule of dollars and cents. He hoped the gentiemen who voted for a $2 bounty per head on wolves and coyotes would not be swayed by any such considerations. The bill then passed by the following vote:

The citizens of Radersburg, it is said, have gotten up a remonstrance sgainst the bridge, which will be presented to the legislature. The Radersburg people want the bridge built at Crow creek crossing to Toston for the benefit of the mines. Mr. Risk, who came into town yesterday, says the citizens of Bedford, St. Louis and Beaver Creek have numerously signed petitions favoring building the bridge at Bedford. The Meagher county people are entirely favorable to it, as it will open up a direct market for the sale of their farm products and will also be the means of having a road all the year around and will do away with the toil. Among the quartz mines being developed the Park mine is being worked on the most mine is being worked on the most extensive scale, A shaft was put down in this mine on the upper tunnel, but the water became so strong that the facilities for handling it were inadequate, and work in the shaft was stopped. Attention is now being directed to the opening of a third tunnel in which it is hoped to drain the water and crosscut the lead which the owners think they have. A small streak of good looking ore has been found, in one of the three tunnels, several tons of which were shipped to Helena. Mr. Risk thinks the prospect may some day develop into a mine. While he does not say so, the conclusion is reached that he thinks the reported statements about the extensive showing of the Park mine have been spoken of by some over-enthusiastic persons.
